AT POLI'S THEATER.

Salomy Jane.

With many new members in the cast and a number of new features at Poli's, the presentation of Salomy Jane on Monday evening was heartily received by a large and enthusiastic audience. Strengthened to a point where it is the equal of a company playing but one night stands, the new Poli company acquitted themselves admirably on Monday evening and time and again received rounds of applause for their excellent work. Each scene was staged with consideration for his role and the result was most pleasing.

The front of the theater was lighted with strings of red, white and blue incandescent lights, which caused the entrance and in the lobby were placed palms, seated behind which the orchestra welcomed the gathering crowd, which was of large proportions.

Salomy Jane is a play of early California life, dated 1849, and written by Paul Armstrong. The four acts are handsomely staged, particular attention being given to the arrangement as to location and time and the result was worthy of praise. The return of John H. Booth was heartily welcomed by the audience and on several occasions he was applauded for his part in the play.

He was never better than in the role of Jack Marbury, a gambler and a sultor for the hand of Salomy. Playable the part of the Man, Tom Moore, on his first appearance here, gave a most favorable impression by his work. He was a convicted horse thief and loved Salomy on first sight, which caused him to work for her freedom, which he obtained and returned to her. His work was marred only by the action of a young man in the audience during a kissing scene. As Salomy, Helaine Hadley was the winsome western girl who inspired all the young men as well as the old. With the freedom and independence of western life she played the proper dash and spirit into the role and won heaps of applause. Emma Hayner, as Lize Heath, the woman with a tongue, was capital, and the audience appreciated her clever work. As Colonel Starbottle, John Robb contributed no small part of the comedy and did it in his characteristic style which pleased. J. Frank Kirk as Madison Cole, the father of Salomy, had a role which he filled in a praiseworthy manner and other members of the company gave fine support.

During intermission there were moving pictures, and it was the general opinion of the audience that the new members of the company have greatly strengthened it and Manager Rusk has the best company ever seen here in a stock company.

SKATING POND IN MOHEGAN PARK

Superintendent Duff has the Dam Nearly Completed—

About Three Acres will be Flooded, Not Over Five Feet Deep.

It will be learned with much interest that a skating place is to be provided for the boys and girls of the city who delight in that sport. For some time there has been no place for the skaters unless they took chances on deep ponds and the river, but it has been decided by the park commissioners that there is an available place in Mohegan park, where a skating pond can be built. Superintendent Duff has therefore been at work building a dam for the pond and the work thereon is nearly completed, being so far along that he hopes to finish it this week.

The point where this pond-to-be will be located, is only about halfway to Mohegan lake, the use of which would not be allowed for skating. It is off the main road a distance of 400 to 500 feet on the road from Greenville, where three to four acres can be flooded, and an ideal pond will result. It will not be over five feet deep at the deepest part, so that it will be perfectly safe for all skaters without danger of drownings. The water for filling this will come from the overflow of the lake, the brook running through the basin, but no attempt has yet been made to store any water there.

The dam has been built by Superintendent Duff, consisting of a concrete corewall 18 inches at the bottom and 12 inches at the top. This dam is being built with stones and earth on both sides and will be six feet above the ground. The dam is about 100 feet long and ten feet wide on the top. The pond will be less than a quarter of a mile from the Rockwell street entrance and less than half the distance to the lake. In addition to the overflow from the lake there are a few springs which will help to flood it.

Good progress is being made by Superintendent Duff on the new road in the park, which he expects to finish by the middle of November. He has 13 men and two teams at work on the road at present. Starting from a point about 1,000 feet west of the pavilion in the park, Superintendent Duff has completed the road for a distance of 2,000 feet, and there remain 1,030 feet to be built before he gets to the road which was built from Washington street. The road is from 18 to 22 feet wide, of gravel, and at the present time he is building it through the old golf course. This provides easy digging and good progress can be made.

From Washington street by the completed road and the one being built to join it the distance is just one mile to the point where work was started by Superintendent Duff this year, or about a mile and a quarter to the pavilion. Upon the opening in November it will provide a handsome drive from Rockwell street by the lake to Washington street. Many have enjoyed the privileges and beauties of the park the past summer and at the present time there are many there daily.

EIGHT DAYS' CAMPAIGN

IN THIS CITY

Five Districts to Be Made of the City in Men and Religion Forward Movement.

At 10.30 Monday morning in the parlors of the Y. M. C. A., an informal gathering of ministers and invited laymen was addressed by A. L. Billings of Hartford upon the plan of the Men and Religion Forward movement, as it applies to the smaller cities. Rev. H. J. Wyckoff was chosen chairman, Rev. E. S. Worcester, secretary, of the meeting. I. C. Case, F. W. Lester, I. C. Elmer, W. E. Gilbert, and C. B. Woodworth were named as a committee to secure and distribute information on this subject and later to call a meeting of the representatives of all the churches to discuss the advisability of a permanent organization to participate in such a campaign. The next meeting will be held when this committee is ready to have it called.

Mr. Billings explained that the plan of campaign includes dividing a city into five districts for the eight-day campaign. Five experts on the five subjects which the movement is making its objective come to the city and are located in each of the five districts in turn, so that each district experiences the work in every department. The first day is a conference day, the second a day of interesting addresses, the third the day the real work begins. A regular conference is held in the afternoon, followed by a luncheon, after which a committee of boys goes around to invite the people to the platform meeting in the evening. This general programme is followed on all of the remaining campaign days.

SEMI-FINALS IN TENNIS TOURNAMENT.

Olcott Beat Kendall — Brown-Arnold Match Stopped by Darkness.

Two important matches, both semi-finals, were fought out before an interested gallery Monday afternoon at the Roque club grounds in the local tennis tournament. Olcott defeating Kendall, 6-1, 6-2, and Brown and Arnold defeating Olcott, 6-0 and 5-7, when darkness set in and stopped the match.

Olcott and Kendall started the entertainment and were looked upon to furnish some of the best tennis of the tourney, both being fast and clever and thought to be closely matched. Except for a spell in the second set, Olcott never seemed to get his game going, placing accurately and giving Olcott many hard gets, but lacking speed in his strokes. Kendall showed power in covering the court and getting everything back, a point that turned many of the games into long deuce contests, but the score shows a rather easy win for Olcott by swift, steady playing.

Kendall serving at the outset took the first game but failed to get another in that set. The sixth game was a particularly hard fought one, going to deuce a dozen times, with Kendall pressing hard to get the needed points and Olcott saving himself by some great runs to the net.

In the second set Olcott made it 2-0 before Kendall broke through his serve and took a game. Kendall followed up his increased pace and captured the next evening the set at 2-1. This was the last he saw of it, since Olcott ran it out in straight games thereafter, thereby winning his way to the final.

Brown and Arnold followed in a match in the semi-finals which furnished the surprise of the afternoon when Arnold pluckily pulled up on the rear and best Brown in the second set, 7-5, after Brown had taken the first from him without allowing a game to get away. After beating Arnold love set in the first, Brown lost the first game in the second set. Brown braced and took three games in succession. Arnold did the same and gained the lead by a game. They saw-sawed along until it was 5-5, when Arnold took the two deciding games. According to the usual tennis regulations, the match goes for nothing since it was not played out the same day it was started, and the two will have to govin over again.

The following drawings have been made for the consolation round, J. Williams vs. R. Briggs, R. Howe vs. C. Haskell, R. Johnson vs. W. Sullivan, E. W. Williams vs. W. Gilbert.

It was reported to the police on Monday that burglars had entered the home of J. R. Bowman of Greene avenue Sunday night and taken a quantity of jewelry and money. How much was taken could not be learned, but it is understood that there are some peculiar circumstances regarding the case.
